Funeral services for Fletcher Stafford, 62, a life-long resident of Jackson county, were conducted this afternoon from the Rock of Light Church in Brownstown, with the Rev. Raymond Gaiter, pastor, in charge. Burial was in Fairview Cemetery.

Mr. Stafford, who was well known throughout the county, died Saturday night at the home of a son, Thedford Stafford, in Brownstown. He had been in failing health for several months, with his condition considered serious for the last 14 weeks.

Born in this county on January 1, 1888, the son of the late Charles and Louisa Lucas Stafford, Mr. Stafford was married January 9, 1908, in Brownstown, to Nancy Ann Butler, who also preceded him in death.

A carpenter by trade, Mr. Stafford was well known throughout the county, and he leaves many friends who join with relatives in mourning his death.

Survivors include nine children, Mrs. Orville Cockerham, Thedford Stafford and Theodore Stafford, all of Brownstown; Thaws Stafford, of Indianapolis; Woodrow Stafford and Mrs. Robert Devers, both of Freetown R1; Fletcher Eugene Stafford, of this city; Mrs. Randal Gibbs, of New Albany; and Cresson Stafford, of Brownstown. Three sisters, Mrs. Oma Piper and Mrs. Ola Mahurin, both of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Delilah Soladine, of Freetown R1, 27 grandchildren and one great-grandchild also survive.
