Former Citizen Dies At Columbus

William H. Boling, 71, Succumbs To Heart Attack — Buried At Brownstown.

William H. Boling, age 71, died suddenly Thursday night at 10:45 o'clock while sitting in a chair in the yard at his home in Columbus. He had earlier complained of the heat and had gone into the yard to rest. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Hathaway funeral home in Columbus by the Rev. W. B. Jenkins. Burial in Fairview cemetery, Brownstown.

Deceased was the son of John and Minerva Boling, both deceased. "Shag", as he was familiarly known, spent the greater part of his life in Brownstown moving to Columbus about ten years ago. He was a good-hearted man, kind and obliging. He was a brick mason and retired a few years ago. At the time of Mr. Boling's death a great-grandson was born to his granddaughter, Mrs. Lucille Edwards, at Indianapolis.

Survivors include his widow, three daughters and three sons: Mrs. Charles Harrell, Mrs. Chas. Cordell, Mrs. Omer Bennett, Ernest Boling, all of Columbus; Eugene, of Pittsfield, Mass., and Henry, of Aurora. Also surviving are twenty grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Boling is seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harrell. She suffered a stroke of paralysis July 4th and another a few days ago.
