DEATH RECORD.

RUBY Goss, daughter of J. L. Goss and wife, whose lingering illness has been mentioned in these columns from time to time, died Friday, January 11, 1901, of consumption, aged 10 years, 7 months and 10 days. Last spring she contracted a severe cold, which affected her lungs, since which time she had been gradually fading away until at last the frail constitution succumbed to the demands of the fatal disease, that had fastened itself upon her. For several months past she had been fully aware of her approaching end and with remarkable resignation to the inevitable, she calmly awaited the final summons of her God. She feared not death and made all her funeral arrangements and had her burial clothes made for some time past. She was a bright and lovable child, well spoken of by all who knew her. The funeral services were held at the Christian church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Elders W. T. McGowan and Thos Jones officiating. The Christian Sunday School, of which she was a member, attended in a body. After the services the remains were taken to their final resting place in Fairview cemetery.
